Rules & Diving Technique

THE PROPER TECHNIQUE OF DIVING

THIS INFORMATION IS BASED ON THE RESEARCH OF THE NATIONAL SWIMMING POOL FOUNDATION

HAVE A PLAN

Once you've put your body in motion there is not much reaction time. Be conscious of the body of water you'll be diving into such as, the depth of the water and the path your dive will eventually take you. DO NOT dive where there might be a hidden obstruction, swimmers, floating objects, or if you do not know the depth of the water.

HAVE YOUR DIVE UNDER CONTROL

The improper use of arms and/or hands could affect your dive causing you to lose control. Practice taking your steps and a small jump with your arms extended over your head with your hands flat and tilted upwards. This can help make your movements more fluid and automatic (muscle memory). Once you feel comfortable in your form you may proceed to dive.

DIVE ACCENT

Once you dive into the water you'll need to direct your body upwards to the water's surface. Upon entry of the water your arms should be extended over your head with your palms flat and fingers upward. This positioning of your hands and arms will also help protect your head. While in that previous position, position your head up and arch your back. This will aid in you ascending naturally to the water's surface and away from the bottom of the pool. Avoiding cranial contact with pool floor will help prevent serious head, neck and spinal injury. Always keep the motto "hands up, eyes up" in mind when performing your dive.
